TWO-WAY TOUR GUIDE SYSTEM

We have all had to adjust our personal and working lives to deal with the new social distancing requirements as a result of COVID19, and clear communication has never been more important.

The Tourtalk TT 200 tour guide system enables staff to speak to and hear each other whilst socially distanced. Each person is issued with a wireless device and headset so they can communicate with their work colleagues in real time. There is no base station so staff are free to move as a group around their site and they can even video call a remote person (with an optional smartphone adaptor), if required. This can be particularly useful for meetings at noisy sites where senior staff can participate from home, or for maintenance staff where an off-site engineer is required to assist with a problem but is unable to visit due to travel restrictions.

Multiple systems can be operated side-by-side without 'cross-talk' so different teams can work independently and safely without disturbing each other.

The Tourtalk TT 200 wireless two-way, full-duplex, short-range communication system is ideal for social distancing in many different applications from one-to-one staff training, team meetings, guided tours, site visits outdoors, simultaneous interpretation and more.

With a wide range of headsets and chargers available, the TT 200 system can be configured to suit each individual organisation. Contact us today to discuss your requirements and receive a no obligation quotation for a system that can assist your staff communication.
